

egalitarian distribution of house values.”<sup>195</sup> As shown here, the case was quite different in Hebron, where the general pattern is one of a diversified range of housing values within the various villages across the district, irrespective of size or location.

Regarding economic stratification statistics, however, a word of caution is in order. Charts 2.2 and 2.3 on the following pages illustrate the nature of this caveat with the example of housing in the village of Wadi Fukin.

---

<sup>195</sup> Ibid., 64.